A resolution calling for the 4-laning of US 90 from Rt. for the new high school were, 43 to the Louisiana line met the approval of Port and Harbor Commissioners on Thursday when they met for the second time in as many weeks to consider their master port development plan.

The resolution, addressed to John D. Smith, state highway commissioner for the Southern district, cited the traffic artery as being in deplorable condition and unsuited to carry the anticipated column of traffic that will be generated by the proposed Mulatto Bayou area port development. Further, the resolution states, as the completion of Interstate 10 is still 4 - 5 years away and U.S. 90 is the main Gulf coast highway used by Mississippi Test Facility personnel and traffic as well as commercial and tourist vehicles of all descriptions, serious and immediate consideration ought to be given to its 4-laning to the state line. A letter, signed by Dr. A.K. Martinolich, jr., and forwarded to Philip Koonce, of Michael Baker, jr., Inc., of Jackson, the commission's engineers, saks that Koonce arrange a meeting with Smith to present the resolution and firmly outline the position of Port and Harbor trustees.

Approval was also given recommending the board of supervisors pay Michael Baker, jr., Inc., the sum of $13,500 for engineering services rendered to date. This sum, according to the original contract with the company, was payable on presentation of the final draft of the master plan.

Additionally trustees voted to further recommend to the supervisors that they proceed with the plan as presented to develop indstrial harbor facilities within Hancock County. Several frams were discussed without final action being taken when Dr. Martinolich brought forward the idea of joinging the Rivers and Harbors

THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY O

President Johnson feels that the South generally has done a good job in following the Civil ... ights Act and deserves some praise. It was predicted there would be rioting and bloodshed in the South, but most of the states have taken the new law in their stride and appear to be trying to comply.

President Johnson has a lot of praise for most of the Southern officials-with the exception of a certain governor.

Bombing proposal

The proposal of GOP Comgressman Jerry Ford of Michigan that the United States bomb Hanoi, North Viet Nam, is considered unwise by American strategists.

If the United States bombs Hanoi, the communists are certain to bomb Saigon in return. So far, Saigon has never been bombed. If this did happen, the war would be certain to escalate.

American public opinion would demand that the United States bomb Peking, and the Chinese government would then retaliate by sending a land army into North Viet Nam to fight the war against the United States and South Viet Nam. So far no Chinese troops have come into battle.

This would probably escalate into World War III, and is what President Johnson has been trying to avoid. I can report that the President and his advisers consider Congressman Ford's: proposal to bomb Hanoi highly irresponsible.

New friends
The United States and the Soviet Union may be experiencing strained relations, over North Vist Nam, but one of the most virulers institutional critics of Russia in the past, Georgetown University, is now awash with Russian schooltsachers. They are living in the dormitories and studying American methods of teaching Higlish.

To those who knew Georgetown University in the past, this is just as revolutionary as the Bolshevik 1917 revolution. It illustrates the change in the Catholic Church and the innovations wrought by Pope John. During the 1920-30's the forefront of anti-Russian opposition in the nation's capital was the famous Jesuit institution, Georgetown University. Its Poreign Service School was dominated by Reverend Edmund Walsh, who spoke repeatedly and effectively against any relations with Russia. He not only opposed Roosevelt's recognition of the Soviet Union in 1934, but once made a speech at the Air Porce War College at Maxwell Field, Ala., advocating preventive war against the Soviet Union. History has now revealed that the original inspiration for the late Joe McCarthy's anti-communist binge, which changed the course of U.S. foreign policy, came from Georgetown University. Some of the Jesuit fathers sold McCarthy on the idea that there were "207 card-carrying Communists in the State Department," and he made a senate speech to that effect; and then was faced with the task of proving his charges-which he failed to do.

After the McCarthy investigation was over and after the Risenhower administration had appointed one of McCarthy's sides, Scott McLood, in charge of State Department personnel, McLeod came up with the official statement that not one communist had been discovered in the State Department.

Awash with communists

Relies Walsh also had a profound effect upon State Department personnel through his Foreign Service School, one of his close friends being Robert Kelley, in charge of State Department-Russian By training young diplomats at his Foreign Service School,

Pather Walsh also gave an anti-Russian slant to American foreign policy for many years. it took Pope John, and to some extent the first Catholic

President of the United States, with his coexistence speech at American University in June, 1963, to change this.

This sciences Georgetown has helped twenty-seven Russian schoolseachers speed ten weeks in Washington studying English teaching methods. They are living at the same institution where Luci, the church's latest convert, will study mursing, and they are getting the benefit of Georgetown teachers and being entertained in friendly fashion by the faculty and neighbors.

In Moscow the leaders of the Kremlin this year boycotted the American Embassy's 4th of July reception. But in Washington the twenty-seven Soviet teachers came out to the Pearson farm in adjacent Maryland, to relax on Independence Day, where they spoke pleasually of their Catholic hosts and of their relations with the American people,

One of the troubles in writing about certain events in Pickens and Ocones Counties of South Carolina is that no one, really, gives a particular hoorah about what goes on in Pickens and Oconee Counties of South Caroline, the 86,000 residents of course excepted, But the biggest fight since Hell's Canyon over "public power" and "private power" is about to be waged in Pickens and Oconee, and if Stewart Udall gets away with this one, he will get away with murder.

The country ought to be aware of what is going on down there. Questions of major public policy are involved, and all of us are involved in them.

The story goes back to January 4, when the Duke Power Company filed an application with the Federal Power Commission to get started on a vast new steam and hydropower complex known as the Keowee-Toxaway Project. Ultimately the project would produce an investment of $700 million in private capital. The first phase, covered in this license application, proposes an investment of $85 million for dams on the Keowee and Little Rivers with an initial hydro capacity of 750,000 kilowatts of power. These units would become operable in 1971.

This is only the beginning of what the company's studies propose. Other dams would be built and other lakes created. Additional steam generating units would provide seven million kilowatts more. All of this construction work would take place on a hundred thousand acres of land already owned by Duke Power Company. The investment would have great meaning in the Appalachian area. In time, an estimated $18 million in State and local taxes, and $24 million in federal taxes, would be generated by the investment. The reservoirs would serve not only for power supply but also for water supply, recreation, and flood control. And not a nickel in federal tax funds would be required.

Now comes Mr. Udall, as Secretary of the Interior, with a brusque and presumptuous petition for intervention, filed on June 21, nearly three full months after the deadline. His object is to block the Duke Power Company's plans completely, and compel the company to rely instead upon power from a federal dam proposed for construction at Trotters Shoals on the Savannah River many "Applicant has no need for steam-electric power from a plant located on the Keowee Reservoir about 1972 or later. Applicant's asserted need for steam power...will be satisfied by congress' permission to build a 2,000,000-kilowatt steam plant below Hartwell concomitant with the Trotters Shoals authorization.

Forget about the local place-names. What we have here is an arrogant assumption by Secretary Udall that he knows more about a power company's needs that the company itself knows. He would block $700 million in private investment in order to compel the company to rely upon a federal power facility instead. The Trotters Shoals dam would require $78 million public funds, and would take 23,000 acres off the local tax rolls; and it should be added that Trotters Shoals has nothing whatever to do with flood control or navigation. It is a 95 per cent pure power project.

Now, if the Duke Power Company had a poor reputation in its service area --- if it charged exorbitant rates, if it underestimates power requirements, if it hadpoor public relations with the communities it serves, or if further federal dams really were required for flood control - Secretary Udall might make a plausible case for intervention in this FPC proceeding. None of these factors is present. Duke is among the most respected power companies in the nation: its rates are low, its public relations excellent. The Keowee-Toxaway project has been endorsed by the governor, the general assembly, the town and county councils, and a host of local organizations. Both of South Carolina's Senators, Republican Thurmond and Democrat Russell, support the company and oppose the secretary.

Mr. Udall is here engaged in a brazen grab for power - for socialized power, in the unadorned word - and the effort needs to be exposed. The Keowee River may be remote from most Americans who believe in the enterprise system, but John Donne's famous warning can be paraphrased: Ask not for whom the Keowee flows; it flows

As always seems to happen just about this time each year. find ourselves right smack in the middle of our annual mack of mid-summer doldrums. Frankly we just aren't in the mood to work. In fact, come to think of it we man't think on single thing we'd like to do., nowhow lazy can one lay? The fact, that both bosses, Joan and Red Glass are attending an ernational publisher's conclave way up North 'n Illinois and Jake, in consequence, has his feet up on the deak, hasn't a thing do with it either, because most of the pleasure of goofing comes from doing it while observed by one's employer! fliving absolutely, no one to tell us to get to work makes the made thing sort of a waste ... so might as well go about our husiness of telling who's been doing what, to and with whom when!

Meanwhile back at the 4th Of necessity several Fourth of July items were left over from last week's column and we have a few to add so lets catch up on holiday activity.

Eddie Englshorn spent the big weekend with son H. R., jr. wife Pat and family in Baton Rouge.

Margaret and Waldo Otis and Mabel Green had 13 housequests including Mabel's daughter Mary Ann, husband Ralph Christman d seven children as holiday visitors.

Margie and Sidney Woods have the longest guest list to date, ne weekended at the Wood's Ncholson Avenue home, the rest and with them on Independence Day. They included Sidney's ther, Mrs. Lucille Woods, and his sisters, twins Kay and Faye, brother, Francis, and Hardy Miller, all of Hazelhurst; Virginia Davis and children, Scott and Pamela, of New Orleans: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Mitchell, and Rusty, of Ferrell, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Leland Mitchell, Mitch and Melanie, of Starkville; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Walker and Lori Ann, of Tacoma, Wash.: ir, and Mrs. Leamon Necaise, Lonie, Rex and Lowery, and Mr. and Mrs. Emile Necaise of Pass Christian, Mr. and Mrs. Cition Bonvillian of Paradise, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Walker, and beby, of Gulfport; Marshall Mitchell of New Orleans and Kiln; Renalde Haas of Kiln and Buford Walker of Pass Christian.

We regret the fact that Marie Dicks, adorable daughters and husband (whose name we don't know, never having met the mentioman) are leaving Waveland and moving into a new home in Pass Christian,

Another Fourth of July bit - Mrs. Winthrop Baker says she and what she imagines to be the least festive holiday of anyone fromd. The date concurred with the time her yearly fig suppliers reported the fruit to be ripe, and as she's famous for her fig preserves she spent the day canning madly.

Ray Gordon thoroughly enjoyed his reign as King of the Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, but insisted he had returned to the ranks of plebians as soon as the affair ended.

Gerri and Hal Detloff (who are all excited about their anticipated visit from the stork) left Saturday for their home town, Armada, Mich., where they will be greeted by Gerri's mother, Mrs. Robert Hensly.

Having a ball watching Miss Pits league bowling and eating pizza last Thursday night were Vera (Mrs. Harold) Carver. loyce (Mrs. Harold) Bermond, who by the way is on our bootie knitter list... the event is scheduled for December; Mildred Swift, who drank milk of all things, with her pizza and Mrs. Oswald Carver.

We're fond of all members of the local clergy but find that Charlie Johnson has a vast store of helpful suggestions, and most practical too. Speaking of the Johnsons we want to send Harriett get well wishes. She's home after having tests in Hancock General.

Belated wishes of the same type go to Pat Murphy. Pat is back at work on a limited scale after recent surgery.

And Bob Lauderdale gets a happy birthday greeting, belatedly of course! Bob cut his delicious (we know cause we are some) cake on Wednesday,

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ladner and five children of Mulling, Fla., which is just out of Tampa, are vacationing with Mr. and Mrs. Ory Ladner. They dined with Elva and Curtis Ladner and Mrs.: Malvin McCardle on Friday at Haverty's. That restaurant was really a swinging place that night. Just a few spotted eating and chatting included Nancy and Lucien Gex and your reporter (I will don't know what we were calebrating); Rosemary and Leroy Mc Parland, Peggy and Floyd Hepting, Peggy and George (Cont. on Page 6-B).

Welcome to Waveland Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson (he's a Hancock General Hospital employe), who have moved into their lovely new home on La Pitte Drive.

Sunice (Mrs. Johnson) Shaw and dengher, Jean Ladner, had a ball on their two week trip to California and Las Vegas, Bunice wasn't a bit nervous on the jet which flew them there, but the Voyage beneath the Sea at Disneyland was a bit challenging and she hasn't any desire to repeat that ride! She's now thinking about a trip to Hawaii. The all expense paid vacation was won by her grandson in Hattiesburg who wants her to take the trir.

Luau report

Roughly 100 members and guests enjoyed a most exotic form of chicken and rice (don't know the name of the recipe but as the fowls were marinated 24 hours in saki, who cared?) at Bay-Waveland Yacht Chib's hisu Saturday night. Quests including, Katherine and Eddie Heath, Betty and Charlie Seers, Rosemary and Leroy McParland, Virginia Miller, Nancy and Lucien Gex, Caroline Keifer and daughter Laurie, etc., etc., appeared in most interesting attire and a real ball was had by all.

Hospital visits

Visitors to Mr. Basil Cockshott's room in Ochsner Foundation Hospital where he is recuperating from major hip surgery, report that he was reading last week's Echo when they dropped in. so we're certain that he'll get our warmest got well wish if we relay it in this manner.

Another very good friend, Hal Hicks, is a patient in Hancock General and we're hoping he'll be home again soon.

So overwhelmed were we with weight statistics of Beverly and Billy Zimmerman's third son and fifth child, - a whopping Il pounds one ounce, that we are lacking further details other than the fact that he arrived at Hancock General around 4 p.m. Sunday.

Happy birthday greetings go to Mabel and Tony Monti who cut cakes on July 13 and 14. Most naturally Tony's was the 13th and Mabel's the following

Hazel Breland is quite clever. . . we're wondering what kind of trick she used to turn the little black bug into a large green dragon?

His many Waveland friends will be sorry to hear that Mr. Jim Behan, who owned a summer home on Bay Oaks Drive, passed away in New Orleans on Friday.
